Court Modifies Order In Mining Case

At a hearing yesterday morning in circuit court, Associate Judge William A. Huster modified a court order of July 6 to allow coal mining machinery to be removed from the Jacob Miller estate near Lonaconing.

James H. Miller, executor of the estate, filed an injunction July 6 against John J. Foote, Arthur Bond and Dayton Morehouse, charging that they had conducted coal mining operations on the property. The defendants were restrained by court order from trespassing on the estate and on July 18 they filed a motion asking for a modification of the order, to allow them to remove the idle machinery, which they charged was costing them $60 a day to rent.

Navy Enlistment Quota Enlarged

Recruiter Advises Youths 17 To Make Immediate Application

Lt. Commander H. R. Stone, officer in charge of navy recruiting in the state, has announced that the quota on voluntary enlistments of 17-year-old youths for the navy has been considerably enlarged, according to Norman R. Dresbach, specialist first class, local navy recruiter.

All young men 17 years old who desire to join the navy should make immediate application for enlistment so they may be sworn in before reaching their eighteenth birthday. Dresbach said. Applications may be made at the recruiting station, third floor, post office building.

Dresbach and Mary D. McCleary, yeoman second class, local WAVE recruiter, went to Frostburg, Md., yesterday to make arrangements for displaying WAVE kits in connection with the observance of the second anniversary of the WAVES Sunday, July 30.

Yeoman McCleary said the navy still requires thousands of WAVES to fill essential shore jobs, backing up our rapidly expanding fleets around the world. Approximately 75,000 young women have enlisted as WAVES since the organization was founded in 1942. Yeoman McCleary said.

Radio Files Found In Japs' Rooms

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP) — A House committee today seized foreign broadcast files found in the rooms of two Japanese employed by the government.

The group, headed by Chairman Lea (D-Calif.), and investigating the Federal Communications commission called an emergency hearing to question Fred Nitti, a native of Japan, and John Kitasaka, American-born Japanese.

Nitti is employed by the Office of Strategic Service in "highly confidential" work, he testified. Kitasaka edits script of radio Tokyo broadcasts in the foreign broadcast intelligence division of the FCC. Both were in a relocation camp after Pearl Harbor.

Committee counsel J. J. Sirica brought out that Kitasaka took to his rooms four copies of foreign broadcasts which were listed as "restricted" and that Nitti had access to them.

Kitasaka said he had the copies only to "study them," to help him in his work. Nitti said they aided him also, in what he was doing for the highly-secret OSS. Both asserted they were loyal to the United States.

Mr. Farley's Flop and Democratic Processes

THIS NEWSPAPER cannot subscribe to the theses set down so suddenly, so vehemently and perhaps in an unthinking moment by Attorney General William C. Walsh regarding the case of James A. Farley. The thesis is that unless a Democrat or a Republican, sticks to his party come hell or high water, the two-party system will be destroyed and democratic (with a small "d") processes wrecked.

To the notion of this newspaper that is exactly what would destroy democratic processes. Why all these campaigns, in which great efforts are exerted to persuade the voters to vote for the candidates and the policies believed to be the best? If a party voter sees and believes his party is taking the wrong course, then it behooves him, as a good American citizen, to vote for the party candidates and policies he believes to be right, or better.

If the citizens of this country are to be just Democrats and Republicans, without ever expiring their right of independent thinking and their right to vote for whichever candidate or set of policies is deemed to be the best, then indeed there would be only one political party, namely, that which merely happened to have the most registered voters, and its candidates would remain permanently in office. To wipe out the great independent vote in this country would be a political disaster with grave consequences. We should then have voting by inheritance, a mere political family dynasty.

Let it not be forgotten that it was the independent vote, as yet uncorrupted by federal spendings, that landed Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House. Mr. Walsh would not have had that denied—or would he?

This newspaper believes that Mr. Farley was dead wrong when he announced that he would vote for Roosevelt for a fourth term on the basis of "principle" after he had voted against his renomination and against the renomination of his logical running mate. If they were considered unfit to be president or vice president then, how can they be held fit to become president and vice president at the election?

If principle amounts to anything in the first place, it amounts to the same thing in the second place. Mr. Farley, he of the poker face, who early in the New Deal prided himself on his toughness and espousal of practical politics, is to be pitted in his present stultifying position. It is really surprising that, dyed-in-the-wool politician that he is, he did not keep his mouth shut as to how he intended to vote, even if he did intend to throw principle to the wind and vote to support that against which he fought, namely, the fourth term, or perpetuation in office in violence to the American tradition so well kept until the unctuous Mr. Roosevelt, by virtue first of circumstances and then of the public treasury, completely upset it.

Mr. Farley is, after all, a mere professional politician of the Roosevelt opportunist type. Did Congress surrender more power or Roosevelt put over some slick morsel of bureaucracy, Jim merely looked poker-faced. Politics was politics, and he could not be worried about policies or principles. Now Jim has been putting on an act of pretending that he has not been done right by. He has been sulking in his tent for, lo, these many years. He says now, by way of explanation, that he will be for a fourth term, although he notes that he opposed a third and a fourth term "on principle."

This makes as much sense as anything that politicians of the Farley stripe ever say. People who are opposed to a third term and a fourth term on principle will vote for Dewey in November. That is the only method whereby the principle can be sustained. It is the only out Mr. Farley faced if he purposed to remain true to principle. You cannot oppose something—on principle or otherwise—by voting for it.

There were some who believed that Mr. Farley was sincere in his opposition to the fourth term, but now that he has, for the sake of whatever political opportunity to which he may now be looking—perhaps a fat federal job as a reward for sticking in line—those who held that belief can be excused for being chagrined over the shattering of this idol with feet of clay.

Presidential Privileges

THE BOSS of the Western Union Telegraph Company has upheld his company's acceptance of President Roosevelt's congratulatory telegram to Senator Harry S. Truman, vice presidential nominee, on the ground that "presumably it constituted an exception" to the official ban on such messages. If the president had the authority to authorize issuance of the ban, it was explained, "he had the authority to modify, alter or rescind it."

What is this we are hearing? Are we harking backward to the theory we all supposed had long since been sent to limbo that the king can do no wrong? The president of the United States, instead of making an exception for himself in this, and in like instances, surely ought to set the example. The ban on congratulatory messages was made for good and sufficient military reasons, that is, for furthering the prosecution of the war program, by clearing congested wire services for military and war production messages. If there was reason enough for Mr. John Q. Public to observe that there was equally sufficient reason for the chief executive to observe it. This brings up the question which has been lurking in the mind of many a citizen eager to do his bit for the war program why the president in the face of the great transportation crisis should traipse around the country in a whole special train. The operation of such a special is the source of great delay and confusion on the part of the railroads. To railroad officials the operation of a special presidential train is nothing short of a nightmare.

Perhaps it was necessary in the interest of the prosecution of the war program that the president should be traveling around the country instead of sticking to his job in the executive offices in Washington. If there is good and sufficient reason, the people will excuse it, but so far they have had no good excuse offered them as to why the president should pick a particular time to utilize a naval base for the sounding of a political message. Perhaps no other person in the world could find out just what was happening at that particular naval base and perhaps other army and naval bases he may have been visiting. But it strikes the average person as queer that "inspection" trips could not be made at those places by persons of expert military and naval knowledge who could easily report their findings to the executive, rather than by the president.

It is all very queer, if not palpably coincidental, but, as stated, if the president had good and sufficient reasons for this timely inspecting, then all well and good.

He's Not Campaigning In the "Usual Sense"

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT said he would "not campaign in the usual sense" for the office, explaining that "in these days of global warfare, I shall not be able to find the time."

But he found the time to utilize a Pacific naval base as the setting for his speech of acceptance. That he could have left it to be known merely that he was making the address from his train at an unidentified spot would not have been enough. And he could have refrained from capitalizing the title of commander-in-chief, but he did not.

But, as both president and political candidate, he found plenty of time to run his train through Chicago for a secret conference with his political chief of staff. He found plenty of time in which to dictate his party platform. He found plenty of time from his naval base inspection, which could have been done, perhaps more ably, by those more expertly conversant with such things, to run his partisan convention by telephone to write political letters, to pull political wires and to make a campaign speech.

But, doubtless Mr. Roosevelt could not see anything partisan in all of that. The only partisanship nowadays is opposition to him.

Fraternalizing In Falsehood

NAZI PROPAGANDA at this stage is going over to the German people, if at all, by scare rather than by persuasion. It may be going over with the Japanese, however, by sympathy. That Goebbels's recent speeches have aroused a sympathetic echo in Japan was recently averred by Berlin radio, declaring that Tokyo "emphasized the veracity of German propaganda" and thereby has "silenced the derogatory comment of the Allies."

Apparently, Berlin radio is self-persuaded that the father a lie is carried, the deeper it registers. But telling the German people they had better believe Goebbels because the Japanese do, is rubbing German credulity the wrong way. The very fact that the Japanese endorse something the Nazi propaganda minister says ought to be a caution to German belief, so traditionally suspicious has Germany been of any attitude posed by its Axis partner in gangsterism.

Each Axis partner knows the other is a liar, but finds it none too easy to fraternize in falsehood.

Children of politicians always know when political campaign time is coming around again. Daddy has them group around him and then calls up the news photographs.

Minak and Pinski didn't stay in the news long enough for sagsters to make jokes about their names.

Rich Relatives

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I'm happy to say I have no rich relatives. Life is difficult enough without having that situation to contend with.

If I had rich relatives, they'd be a great problem to me. Suppose they had no children. Suppose I was their nearest relative. Suppose they were getting along in years, and pompous, and cantankerous, and arrogant and the sort of spoilsports nobody could like. And suppose they kept suggesting that I, their great grand-nephew, would be their heir if I was a nice boy and behaved myself.

Wouldn't that be a fine kettle of fish? If I had rich relatives like those cranky old toughies, what a life I'd live, and how I'd despise myself. It would be a severe test of my philosophy. After all, think of all that money. Think of my children, think of the "advantages" it would give them. Think of how nice it would be to have a hockley like their money. And after all, too, is there any reason why I shouldn't be kind to a pair of unhappy people merely because they are so unfortunate as to have more money than they know what to do with?

I fear their money would be a very bad influence on my character. I had influence indeed, branding me indelibly. I've seen it work out that way with others. I have no reason to believe it would work any differently for me.

But suppose they were rich relatives from whom there wasn't the slightest chance of inheriting anything ever? What then? Well, wouldn't that be, then, if they were the generous kind, I'd be hating their giving me things. If they were the snooty kind, as they'd probably be, I'd resent their snipiness. I'd carry a bigger chip on my shoulder than any of theirs. I'd hate myself for being so nasty. I'd hate them for upsetting me so. I'm sure I wouldn't get along with them, whatever they were like.

So I'm glad I have no choice. I have no rich relatives. They needn't think about me. I needn't bother about them. It's all settled. I can pick all my friends without hypocrisy. I need carry no chip on my shoulder. I needn't be sweet to them. I needn't be sour. I can do as I please and so can they. . . . They don't exist.

HOW TO TELL WHEN THE EGGS ARE DONE

Reminder Is Given That Next President Will Face Reconstruction and Not War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Many persons who have already begun to talk about the issues of the political campaign give the impression that the next president, or commander-in-chief, is to take office in October or November of this year when, as a matter of fact, the next chief executive begins his term on January 20, 1945.

Lots of things can happen between now and next January and one of them may be the ending of the war in Europe. The Japanese-American war is not one for diplomacy or finesse but for naval and air operations and there will be no effect on the Japanese one way or the other if either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey is elected. The war in the Far East may last anywhere from several months to several years.

So the main consideration before the American people will be what kind of president do they want on January 20, 1945. Confronting the next president will be the job of reconstruction. This means the handling of the enormous debt that has been piled up and it means the strengthening of the economic system so as to make the shock of transition as painless as possible.

What would either candidate offer? The New Deal concept heretofore has been to meet every economic crisis with more and more government spending. The opposing theory has been to encourage those who would venture their risk capital in the home and foreign markets. The Republicans have always argued that business could restore America to real instead of synthetic prosperity once the dreamers and crackpots who have been experimenting with public funds were put aside and practical working measures adopted.

Undoubtedly the trend is away from the New Deal though Mr. Roosevelt likes to give that impression during his campaigns only to swing back sharply to the left once the hazards of the election are out of the way and a certain number of glibly conservative have given him their votes. The selection of Truman over Wallace was a part of that grand strategy of camouflage which has characterized the Democratic high command's operations in every political campaign since 1932.

Enormous Task

The country will have an enormous task in economic stability because the public has bought vast quantities of war bonds. Shall the task of the next four years be turned over to those who believe in bigger and bolder deficits or those who think the risk capital system can be made to work if it is given half a chance?

This does not mean that the regulatory power of government must be modified, but merely that it should be exercised honestly and not with an eye to votes or special privileges given to groups in return for their campaign contributions. Fair Administrators and fair and honest federal judges instead of prejudiced and political-minded tools on the bench are all that most business men really want. They will abide by the rules if the umpire isn't hooked up with one or the other of the teams.

Dewey's Big Task

But can Governor Dewey convince the people that the big job ahead is domestic reconstruction and not a military operation? Can he discount the time of the ending of the war and remind people that they are not selecting a commander-in-chief for a European war which probably will be ended or nearly so by next January? Can he outline the way he proposes to maintain wage levels and high purchasing power, and to end the basic principles. The real cleavage comes in the electorate as between those who want more government pump-priming in disregard of ultimate bankruptcy for the nation and those who know that the battle of reconstruction can be won only if risk capital is given a chance, tax rates are made realistic and the socialistic and communistic-minded attitude is completely eliminated from our governmental approach.

that line since Stalingrad. At no point yet have they been able to defend a line, although one was promised (a stout one, the Germans said) running from Riga to Odessa.

Odessa has long since gone and Riga is outflanked, and probably surrounded. The Nazis just do not have the men and materials for a real fighting effort and the generals know it best.

It is possible now that the Reds will run into some strong defensive points around Warsaw, but no other defense line into Germany looks like anything important. Talk of a Vistula river line is as circuitous as the river itself which may offer a natural defense, due to its width in the south, but the Russians are known to have made great concentrations centering on that southern front, particularly in the Lwow area.

Pause Now Likely

What we must look for next is a pause in the Russian marching to bring up communications lines. That they have gone as far and as fast as they have without stopping for this necessity is truly remarkable.

But the pause is apt to be covered by a switch in Russia emphasis to the Lwow area. (The Nazis probably have removed most of their 300,000 men reported trapped in the Baltic states by this time.)

In Normandy the same Nazi weakness is evident. The slow fighting there lately has merely represented our rebuilding of strength for the push ahead.

While the Nazis have sixty divisions in France and the Lowlands, they have been able to present us with only twenty-four on the Normandy line, and obviously are in a situation where they cannot build up much, else they would have, in view of the time allowed.

Italian Defense Stronger

Only in Italy can they hope to hold out for long. There, they are retreating upon a mountainous short line (Gothic) upon which they once had 20,000 Italian laborers at work preparing positions, and in all, spent at least six months building positions which could be defended by a weak force.

The Po river line behind that one is indefensible considering the size of their force.

Thus it is the young German officers who are as much responsible for the continuation of this war as Hitler. They are the ones who answer a question which has long been in my mind as to how in the world he could possibly maintain himself in the face of this situation.

But they cannot long continue fanatically oblivious to the decisions in which so many of their wisest elders lost their lives.

Only Small Change Can Swing Election, Pettengill Notes

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

The present betting odds on the election are: Roosevelt to win. Those should be taken with a hoghead of salt. Clever politicians start campaigns with bets to influence the "band-wagon voters." The game is to play them for suckers by taking the long end of propaganda bets which can be secretly "covered" later if the going gets tough.

With so many uncertainties, only a fool would undertake the prophet's role so far in advance. But the New Dealer who can look the cold figures in the face without skipping a heart-beat is a game guy.

In 1940 the Republicans carried ten states. In fifteen others they got more than forty-five per cent of the vote. In short, a change of less than three votes in 100 would have given them eight of these states, totalling 235 electoral votes, and less than four votes in 100 would have given them three more states, or 270 electoral college votes—twenty-four more than enough. These eleven states are: Wisconsin, Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Minnesota, Ohio, Missouri, Wyoming, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania. In one of them, New York, there were more Republican votes than Democratic.

But Roosevelt was also the candidate of the American Labor party, whose 417,418 votes put him over—and, of course, under great obligations to them.

Cushion Not So Soft

Roosevelt got a grand total of 27,244,526 votes, and a majority of 4,939,332 in 1940. This seems like a soft cushion, but it isn't so comfortable when the figures show that a change of only 596,000 votes out of 26,626,000, cast in these eleven states would have defeated him.

Another way of looking at it is that in the twenty-five states in which the Republicans got over forty-five per cent of the votes, Roosevelt had a majority of 3,157,000 in 1932, of 5,942,455 in 1936, and of only 864,054 in 1940.

The Republicans now have governors in twenty-six states, which together have 342 electoral votes, or seventy-six more than enough.

In the thirty-eight states outside the "Solid (?) South," the GOP controls seventy-nine per cent of the counties, the Democrats and or New Dealers twenty-one per cent. This is less imposing than it seems, for some fifteen counties out of 3,000 in the United States gave Mr. Roosevelt a plurality of 2,067,000, or more than half of his total margin of victory. However, these huge city majorities are largely thrown away so far as Congress is concerned. The fact that seventy-nine per cent of the counties are in Republican hands indicates a Republican majority in Congress, and gains in the Senate, whatever happens to the presidency.

Many Additional Factors

Comparing 1944 with 1940, the following are additional anti-New Deal factors: Bricker an infinitely stronger candidate than McNary; the New Deal grown old; the woman's vote; the support of Browder and Hillman; the revolt in the South very much stronger; a loss of the youth vote now in uniform, relatively few of whom will vote; the migration of munition workers and loss of their voting residence; dissatisfaction among the negroes over army treatment and jobs; dissatisfaction over the treatment of Poland; millions still unemployed in 1940, whereas now the same people have war bonds, savings, insurance, in short, something to conserve; the twenty per cent withholding tax; Catholics apprehensive about the spread of Communism and immorality; and finally, a large loss among the A. F. of L. Unions, United Brotherhoods, and Railroad Workers who don't want the C. I. O. to have a mortgage on the next administration.

Balance your family's menus with good HOME CANNED FOODS

Here's how to make your family healthier, stretch your ration points and cut your food budget. Do plenty of home canning this summer and fall while the markets are brimming with fresh fruits and vegetables.

Next winter, some foods will be hard to get because of the needs of our armed forces and allies. Yet for good health, every member of your family needs at least two fruits and two vegetables a day... 90 quarts per person a year.

Home canning is easy to carry through—especially when you have a dependable, flexible Gas range. If you have any questions, just call on the Home Service Department of your Gas company, for sound advice.

Nothing keeps a family happier than a variety of foods... so let your Gas range help you can them while they're plentiful! And for best results—watch these musts:

- Jars should be tested for a perfect seal and thoroughly washed in soapy hot water, then boiled in clear water for at least 15 minutes.
- Examine jars and covers for cracks, nicks and dents. Do not use imperfect jars or lids.
- Reseal to expel air with a knife blade. Do not fill jars too full—allow space for boiling. Fill sterilized jars to within 1/2 inch of top for fruits, 1 inch for vegetables.
- Wipe top of rubber free of seeds, pulp or syrup.
- Cool all jars upright to assure seals. Avoid kitchen drafts. Set to cool on surface with several thicknesses of cloth.
- Follow canning directions carefully—this is most important.

You can still secure a copy of "Home Canning," a booklet that will see you through any canning situation... just write or visit your Gas Company office.

600 Officers Needed In Sanitary Corps

BALTIMORE, July 25—Approximately 600 officers are needed for medical and scientific work in the army sanitary corps, Maj. David L. B. Pringer, director of Third Service Command Officer Procurement Division, announced today.

There is a critical need for these officers who will be responsible to a large degree for the health and well-being of our troops in the field," Maj. Pringer said.

The men will be appointed to positions as sanitary engineers, bacteriologists, biochemists, parasitologists, entomologists and industrial hygiene engineers.

There is no medium age appointment and maximum age limits vary with the type of assignment but normally do not go above forty-two, Maj. Pringer pointed out. Men will be accepted for limited service. Application should be made to the Officer Procurement Division, Third Service Command, 1144 O'Sullivan building, Baltimore.

Carloadings Increase

Carloads handled by the Baltimore and Ohio the week ended July 22, 1944, totaled 78,806 made up of 47,663 loaded on line and 31,143 received from connections. This was an increase of 5,301 over the same week of last year when the total was 73,506 consisting of 43,641 loaded on line and 29,864 received from connections.

During the preceding week (the week ended July 15) the total was 78,903 including 48,606 loaded on line and 30,297 received from connections. Carloads handled during the same week of 1933 were 63,349 comprising 42,123 loaded on line and 21,226 received from connections.

Men once were offered grants of land as an inducement to join the United States Marine Corps.

WPB To Consider Providing Tires

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—A shortage of truck and bus tires so serious as to threaten essential civilian transport will be laid for solution before the full War Production Board, reliable sources reported today.

The board will weigh a plan approved yesterday by the WPB World War I

Requirements committee, under which about 145,000 of the big tires would be diverted to truck and bus operators from the army export quotas for the Foreign Economic Administration and supplies earmarked for new vehicles.

More than sixty per cent of Egypt's landowners derive their entire living from an acre or less of land.

More than 200 hospital ships were used by the belligerents in World War I.

HEALTH QUIZ

Do you have poor digestion? ☐ YES ☐ NO
 Do you feel headachy after eating? ☐
 Do you get sour or upset easily? ☐
 Do you feel tired—listless? ☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested, lie sour and heavy within you. Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you really want.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's, taken as directed, aid digestion after Nature's own order. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—only 25¢. You'll be glad you did.

29 Fatal Traffic Accidents in June

BALTIMORE, July 25 (AP)—Twenty-nine persons were killed in Maryland in traffic accidents during June, an increase of 7.4 per cent over the corresponding month of last year, the Maryland Traffic Safety Committee reported.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Modern buildings, away from the traffic of everyday commerce, house an amazing new world of microscopes, test tubes, retorts, and other chemical apparatus—the research laboratory. Here investigators diligently study new means of combating disease—hoping, testing, rejecting, perhaps a thousand times before success is achieved. Other chemists wrestle with nature, slowly extracting from her the secrets of the vitamins. All are confident of the ultimate success of their fight to free the world of disease. Campaign Will Affect Only One Ballot in Four, Survey Reveals

Three-fourths of Voters Have Already Made up Their Minds

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
 Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 25—Campaigns conducted by presidential candidates typically influence the voting intentions of only a small part of the electorate.

Of approximately 40,000,000 civilian voters who are likely to go to the polls this November, an estimated 30,000,000 say they have already made up their minds how they will vote and say that there is no chance that they will change.

This leaves at the present time 10,000,000 civilian voters, or only one in every four, who will presumably pay close attention to the campaign with the idea of weighing the arguments before making a decision. They are the ones who are either undecided or who say they may change their minds between now and election day.

Consequently they are the group toward which campaign strategy must be directed by both parties. They hold the balance of power in the election along with the soldier vote.

Facts Are Revealed
 These facts are revealed in a nation-wide survey by the Institute. The public is obviously less familiar at present with Mr. Dewey's personality and ideas than with those of Mr. Roosevelt after his seven years in the White House. But almost as many of Mr. Dewey's supporters as Mr. Roosevelt's say they will not change their minds about how they are going to vote.

In the case of those who incline toward Mr. Dewey, seventy-five per cent say they are certain to stick to their intentions. Among Mr. Roosevelt's supporters, eighty per cent claim they will not change.

The proportion of voters with definite conclusions is fairly uniform throughout all walks of life. Farmers and city folk, men and women, and people in all the major occupational groups, show an almost equal degree of positiveness about their voting preference.

Few laymen realize that in every presidential election there is a sizeable group of voters who pay no attention whatever to the candidates, issues, platforms, and events during a campaign, but who continue to vote the straight party ticket as their fathers did.

Take for example Lancaster county, South Carolina. In eight presidential elections from 1912 to

Water Shortage Brings Complaint At Westernport

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, July 25—A delegation headed by Mrs. Elmore Martin, Morrison street, appeared before the mayor and commissioners of Westernport Monday night complaining about the shortage of water. The mayor said if another line was laid it would improve conditions. The pumps being installed at Savage river dam will be completed in ten days, which will remedy the situation he said.

While amendment is being considered to the town charter to be presented to the next legislature in January, Mayor John Barnard said one thing he wanted considered to have an additional polling place for town elections. One is not adequate as there are 1,526 city voters. Patrick H. Fahey, city clerk, said if this was done it would be necessary for a re-registration.

Walter Horner complained of sewer gas escaping at Green and Central avenues.

The clerk was instructed to write the C. and P. railroad and request that it remove an unsightly pile of ties from an abandoned crossing near White's foundry.

A chemical company was given a contract to clean and disinfect toilets in the city building, Potomac Fire Company No. 2 to pay one-fourth of the cost.

It was decided to use the Potomac Fire Company room for a polling place for voting this fall.

The city clerk announced that 623 garbage cards had been sold, bringing in a total of $493.

- Quick starting and stopping wastes gas! Maintain even speed; anticipate traffic stops.
- Drive at moderate speeds; 20-30 M.P.H. is the most economical. On the highway, don't exceed 35 M.P.H.
- Under-inflated tires increase rolling resistance and tire wear! Check tire inflation weekly.
- Dragging brakes waste gas! Keep brakes properly adjusted. For safety, have them relined if necessary.

Racing Returns To Bel Air Today For 10-Day Stay

Meet Will Be First at Three-Quarter Mile Oval since 1942

BEL AIR, Md., July 25 (AP) — Bel Air race track will open a ten-day race meeting tomorrow—the first to be held at the three-quarter mile track since 1942. The meeting will continue through Aug. 5.

General Manager Ray Bryson said that many horses had been shipped from Hagerstown, where a ten-day season closed Saturday, and added that others had been shipped from Charles Town, W. Va., which closed on July 8.

Others, he said, were received from Delaware Park, Pascoag, R. I., and Wheeling, W. Va.

Bel Air, the second of the state's minor tracks to operate this year, did not run last year because of transportation difficulties. It is the closest of the minor tracks to Baltimore, with the exception of Timonium, which has been taken over by the army.

General Manager Bryson and his associates will be out to shatter the 1941 wagering total, which is tops in that year's wagering at $2,172,838.

The 1941 season also saw the single day record of $335,165 posted. The minimum purse during the meeting will be $700. Some will run as high as $1,000.

Seven flat races and a steeplechase will be carded daily by Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan. Fields in flat races will be limited to ten starters. There will be no limit on jumping fields.

NEW YORK, July 25. (P)—A new quiz for the Blue makes its appearance Wednesday night. It's called "Scramby Amby," and as its title implies, it has to do with the unscrambling of words, phrases, etc. The program, which had its introduction a year or so ago over WLW, Cincinnati, has been running on the West Coast.

It goes on the air at 7, with a repeat for the West at 10:30. The Colonel of CBS, sometimes called "Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle," has been broadcasting of late on Saturday afternoons. Now, for whatever time being he can find, he will appear at 10:30 on Wednesday nights in the spot most recently occupied by Report to the Nation, moved to Sundays.

Orchestra Change

Wood Herman's orchestra has replaced that of Frankie Carle in the Red Barber-Allen Jones show on CBS at 8.

Helen Hayes is to be the star in Arthur Hopkins' "Presenting the Lady with a Lamp," biographical drama based on the life of Florence Nightingale.

The Xavier Cugat orchestra concludes for the summer on MBS with the program at 8:30.

The Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, together with Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Col. John Stillwell, president of the National Safety Council, will discuss "Saving Farm Manpower for War Power" via MBS at 7:45 P.M. in connection with national Farm Safety week.

Jean Hersholt's Dr. Christian drama on CBS at 8:30 will be "Five-Day Partridge" another in his series of prize scripts.

World Security through Application Of Rotary Principles Urged by Shank

Says Wars Are Destroying Fort Cumberland Post's Officers Are Installed

A fervent plea for world security through application of the principles of Rotary International was made yesterday at the weekly luncheon of its local club by John Jay Shank, of Waynesboro, Pa., new governor of its One Hundred Eightieth district.

Shank was paying his annual official visit to the club at the gathering, which was held at the Central YMCA, and which was featured also by the presence of a past president of the club, Lt. Col. Joseph P. Franklin, now on leave from army service in Africa, England and other war zones after an absence of twenty-seven months.

Traces Evolution of Man
The district governor developed his plea from the scientific angle, tracing the evolution of man from the dawn of civilization to the present and noting that the high mark of culture attained in ancient Greece surmounted that of today. This, he declared, was because man had failed to give due attention to cultural and spiritual advancement while achieving miracles in erecting marvelous machines which contribute to the comfort and material progress of the human race.

Shank is a scientist himself, being head of the Wayne laboratories at Waynesboro. The problem confronting mankind today, the speaker declared, is that of seeking to control the enormous forces which have been developed through technological and scientific development. Man has this great energy at his disposal but he has failed to learn how properly to control it and as a result we have destructive global wars which are destroying the things which men should have, for their comfort and peaceful living. The answer was declared to be that of bringing our culture up to the material standard we have attained.

Stresses Rotary Service
Now that the world has shrunk by reason of these inventions and men are living face to face with one another instead of apart in other nations, Shank continued, they must learn to live peacefully and profitably. No greater agency to that end can be used, he declared, than application of Rotary principle that he profits most who serves best, which he hoped would find application at the peace table.

To that end Rotarians must bend their efforts progressively through the four Rotary lanes of club, vocational, community and international service, Shank said.

Visitors at the luncheon included Charles D. Ludwig, president of the Keyser, W. Va., Rotary club; Harold J. Snyder, also of that club; and Samuel S. Susser, of Meyersdale, Pa.

Project Is Outlined
Plans for another Rotary wheel achievement project to be conducted in the district this year were outlined by Shank at a club assembly last evening at the Cumberland Country Club following a dinner. Clubs in groups of five will cooperate with inter-city meetings and exchange programs among other activities.

A program for conducting an Institute of International Understanding here also was discussed. A fifty per cent increase in these institutes for the ensuing year in the district was reported by the governor.

Other activities of the club for the year also were discussed.

Traffic Violations In City Increase

Although violations of city traffic laws hit their peak in June, when $100 was collected in fines and forfeits, mostly for parking violations, in the same month criminal violations decreased from those in May.

A total of $494 was collected in June as compared to $627 in May. Practically all of the fines were imposed for drunkenness or disorderly conduct.

A check of police court records showed that $313 has been collected in the last six months in fines and forfeits for parking violations. Parking was the lowest month on record, with only $33 collected. No traffic violations of a serious nature are tried in police court, being transferred to trial magistrates court where state cases are heard.

Fines for criminal violations in the six months amounted to $2,301, with January the lowest month, only $181 in fines being collected then.

Sensabaugh Buys Latest Equipment To Move Garbage

First of Two Gar Wood Load Packers Now in Use on City Routes

A Cumberland hauling and excavating contractor who pioneered the use of trucks for the removal of garbage and ashes in place of the antiquated horse and wagon nine years ago has taken another forward stride with the introduction this week of the Gar Wood Load-Packer, which today is regarded as the newest, fastest, most sanitary and economical unit for collecting and hauling garbage and rubbish and offering an inexpensive way to provide a cleaner and healthier municipality.

The Gar Wood Load-Packer, the first of two ordered by Grover C. Sensabaugh, city garbage contractor, arrived here over the past weekend and made its initial appearance during the collection rounds on Sunday night.

Steel bodies for the vehicles are manufactured by Gar Wood Industries, Inc., Detroit, Mich., and are mounted on trucks in Baltimore.

The load-packer compresses all types of garbage, refuse and rubbish including cartons, boxes and miscellaneous trash into a compact, full capacity load that is many times greater by weight than the usual loose load. Every available nine cubic yards of the body can be filled. The body is all enclosed, odors are confined and papers cannot blow away. Liquids are squeezed out allowing garbage to burn faster.

Save Life of Cans

Perhaps the chief selling point of the new load-packer is the fact that it contains a big loading hopper located close to the ground to simplify loading of cans and other bulky items. This improvement will eliminate the pounding of cans out of shape against the sides of the high trucks, thus eliminating many headaches for householder and garbage collectors alike. The tailgate ram can be operated while the truck is moving, thereby speeding up collection. The load is dumped in the conventional manner.

A precision-built, double row ball bearing pump operated by a Gar Wood power take-off on the truck transmission, supplies the power to provide hydraulic pressure to the two cylinders which pack the load into the body at 90 pounds to the square inch. This pump also supplies oil pressure to the two cylinders that lift the tailgate for dumping of loads and for the two-way twin hoists that raise and lower the body or hold it in any position on the way up or down. A multiple control valve directs the oil from the pump to the loading cylinders. The cylinders for lifting the tailgate, and to the hoists for raising and lowering the body. An excess pressure valve protects all operations.

The Gar Wood Load-Packer is now in use in many cities, including Schenectady, N. Y., Flint and Detroit, Mich., Newport, R. I., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Chicago, N. C., Babylon, N. Y., Billings, Mont., Honolulu, Hawaii; Montreal, Canada, and Medellin, Colombia, S. A.

Another Truck on Way
Sensabaugh, who held the city contract for removal of garbage and ashes in 1925 and in 1929, 1930 and 1931, prior to obtaining it this year, expects the second of the new type trucks to arrive here Thursday.

Two trucks, he said, will handle most of the garbage here during the summer months while another vehicle may be added by the time winter rolls around and ashes will be added to the twice-a-week collections in the different sections of the city. Each truck costs approximately $5,000.

The Gar Wood Load-Packer should prove a big improvement over the canvas tarpaulin covered trucks which have been in use here. In stressing the changes that have taken part in the past twenty years, Sensabaugh recalled that when he pioneered the truck idea in 1925 he was told it couldn't be done because loaded trucks couldn't stand the gaff on the hilly streets in the city. "I proved that they could," the contractor concluded.

Started Business in 1920

In 1920, Sensabaugh started in business with one three-quarter ton truck. Today he has twenty-four pieces of trucking equipment, not including excavating machinery. He estimates that his trucks cover ninety-two miles in collecting garbage and ashes in Cumberland. Eight men are employed on the city routes by the Sensabaugh firm whose offices are located at 215 Thomas street.

Sherwood Band Will Not Appear Today Due To Booking Mixup

A conflict in booking dates brought the Bobby Sherwood band to Cumberland yesterday, the management of the band holding a contract to appear at the Maryland theater July 25 instead of July 26 (today), the date shown in the contract held by Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, proprietor of the Maryland.

The band is booked to play in Hagerstown today and left Cumberland last night, and as a result the band will be unable to appear in Cumberland at this time as Sherwood is on the way to New York. However, he promises to return to Cumberland in the early fall while en route west.

"Bathing Beauty," the technicolor musical scheduled to open at the Maryland Thursday will open today instead, due to the mixup in the band dates. The Maryland management tried to book another band to appear here today but all efforts failed.

Approximately fifteen tons of wastepaper were collected yesterday on the west side, The Dingle and Bowling Green on the opening day of the four-day drive in Cumberland and vicinity. W. Donald Smith, chairman of the Allegheny County Salvage Committee announced last evening.

The first day's house-to-house collection netted about three-fourths of a carload of paper which is to be assigned to the Container Corporation, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Marr Makes Appeal
T. E. Marr, representative of the Baltimore office of the corporation which manufactures blood plasma containers and other items essential to the war effort, arrived here yesterday and offered his assistance in helping to put over the drive. He pointed out that the paper shortage is critical and his firm has appealed to many cities to assign their wastepaper to the Philadelphia factory.

Based on yesterday's showing, Smith estimated that the four-day collection will net about fifty tons. Sixty-seven tons were collected one month ago but that collection followed a lapse of three months.

Today's canvass by the trucks of Emmett A. Dougherty will include the North End section and all streets north of Baltimore avenue and Baltimore street. The collection will start at 9 a. m. and all householders are urged to have their bundles out on the curb at that hour.
